4. Delivery of any purchase will be made only upon payment of the total amount due for all purchases at the sale.

Deliveries will be made on sales days between the hours of 9 A. M. and 1 P. M., and on other days—except holidays—between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M.

5. Shipping, boxing or wrapping of purchases is a business in which the Association is in no wise engaged, and will not be performed by the Association for purchasers. The Association will, however, afford to purchasers every facility for employing at current and reasonable rates carriers and packers; doing so, however, without any assumption of responsibility on its part for the acts and charges of the parties engaged for such service.

6. Storage of any purchase shall be at the sole risk of the purchaser. Title passes upon the fall of the auctioneer's hammer, and thereafter, while the Association will exercise due caution in caring for and delivering such purchase, it will not hold itself responsible if such purchase be lost, stolen, damaged or destroyed.

Storage charges will be made upon all purchases not removed within ten days from the date of the sale thereof.

7. Guarantee is not made either by the owner or the Association of the correctness of the description, genuineness or authenticity of any lot, and no sale will be set aside on account of any incorrectness, error of cataloguing, or any imperfection not noted. Every lot is on public exhibition one or more days prior to its sale, after which it is sold "as is" and without recourse.

The Association exercises great care to catalogue every lot correctly, and will give consideration to the opinion of any trustworthy expert to the effect that any lot has been incorrectly catalogued, and, in its judgment, may either sell the lot as catalogued or make mention of the opinion of such expert, who thereby would become responsible for such damage as might result were his opinion without proper foundation.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Buying or bidding by the Association for responsible parties on orders transmitted to it by mail, telegraph or telephone, will be faithfully attended to without charge or commission. Any purchase so made will be subject to the above Conditions of Sale, which cannot in any manner be modified. The Association, however, in the event of making a purchase of a lot consisting of one or more books for a purchaser who has not, through himself or his agent, been present at the exhibition or sale, will permit such lot to be returned within ten days from the date of sale, and the purchase money will be returned, if the lot in any material manner differs from its catalogue description.

Orders for execution by the Association should be written and given with such plainness as to leave no room for misunderstanding. Not only should the lot number be given, but also the title, and bids should be stated to be so much for the lot, and when the lot consists of one or more volumes of books or objects of art, the bid per volume or piece should also be stated. If the one transmitting the order is unknown to the Association, a deposit should be sent or reference submitted. Shipping directions should also be given.

Priced copies of any sale, or any session thereof, will be furnished by the Association at a reasonable charge.

HENRI HARPIGNIES

FRENCH: 1819—

No. 16—THE FARMHOUSES

(Panel)

600

Height, 12¾ inches; length, 17¾ inches

UNDER a sky of brilliant turquoise-blue in which small cumulus masses of white cloud float, a group of French farmhouses are seen, edging a winding road. Their walls are a creamy white and their roofs gray and a dull red, and green vines and bushes stand against them, issuing from the green-grown roadside. The houses extend from the right foreground around a bend in the road, where trees growing from mounds rise above the low roofs. From the left a high green bank throws its shadow on the sandy roadway. Two figures of peasant women in blue are observed, both wearing white caps.

Owner, MILLARD F. TOMPKINS, Esq.

JEAN BAPTISTE CAMILLE COROT

FRENCH: 1796—1875

No. 17—L'ÉTANG

Height, 14 inches; length, 18 inches

9000

ON the right the edge of a wood projects into a winding stream, thick foliage aloft overhanging the water and blocking out the sky, and the bared and twisted branches of a dying tree relieved against the green mass. On the left, beyond a cleared bank in the foreground, are more dense woods, receding to a distant point, with feathery tree-tops standing against a blue sky partially veiled by light clouds. Low along the horizon, which is glimpsed beyond the point, there is a rose tint, and the sky light is admitted to the limpid retreat, mottling the slowly moving water. To this cool spot, toward the close of day, have come three cows and entered the water, where they stand placidly, while the figure of the cowherd, in blue with the inevitable red spot, is seen at the left, seated on the brown bank.

Signed at the lower right, COROT.

From the collection of Herr de Schoen, of Worms, father of the recent German Ambassador to Paris.

By order of JACOBS AND LIVINGSTON, Attorneys for the Owner.

GIOVANNI BOLDINI

ITALIAN: 1844—

No. 18—GATHERING WILD FLOWERS

Height, 13 inches; length, 18 inches

A GREEN hillside sloping forward and to the left is in a blaze of summer sunshine, which turns the long, wild-growing wiry and feathery grass to a yellowish-green, against a background of woods with shadowed recesses. Wild flowers grow in plenty among the grasses, dotting the green with the yellow of buttercups, the white of daisies, and the brilliant red note of poppies. Hither have come a number of young women in light dresses and poke bonnets, with pink, yellow and pale violet parasols, and some sit or recline languorously, deep in the flowery verdure, while one in pale blue wanders off plucking the inviting blossoms. In the right foreground a stunted dead tree lifts scraggly gray and weathered arms against the green.

Signed at the lower right, BOLDINI.

Owner, Mrs. J. H. RUSSELL.

Marked at the lower right, VENTE COROT, and the official seal is on the back.

Owner, Mrs. J. H. RUSSELL.

No. 21—LANDSCAPE

Height, 12 inches; length, 17 inches

Height, 12½ inches; length, 18¾ inches

THE water, which occupies the greater part of the foreground, reflects the rose and yellow of the evening sky and the greens of a row of poplars terminating the view of the opposite bank. This juts into the water in a point, off which lies a boat with a single occupant.

IN the season of leafless trees but while the weather is warm and children are hatless, a motley crowd of the Boulevards toward the east is pictured, in the days of horse cabs and horse-drawn omnibuses. They are seen on the sidewalks and in the street, passing about the statue of the Republic and near a kiosk, and their dogs are not forgotten, a particularly independent one approaching in the foreground; all with the life of a sketch.

IN the immediate foreground an arched bridge of brick and stone crosses a stream which widens as it curves away to the left between mud banks and partly ruined buildings. Crossing the bridge are turbaned horsemen and persons afoot, traveling toward a considerable grouping of people assembled in the shade of a wide-spreading tree of thick foliage near a wall in the middle distance. Other persons move toward the spectator, one accompanying a burdened donkey. In the neighborhood of the wall are ruins and standing minarets, and in the background the dome of a mosque appears and to right a bleak, treeless hill. Along the river are palm trees. Many of the figures are in gay colors, the horses are white, black and sorrel, and the whole scene is in brilliant sunlight under a clear blue sky.

FIVE sheep and a lamb are shown in a stable with grayish plastered walls. Two are feeding from a rack while one looks on, and two are lying down, while the lamb seems partly mystified by the intrusion of two hens at a trough; other chickens appear elsewhere, one on a stairway to a loft. On the wall hangs a cone-topped lantern. Sunlight from above mellows the brownish-yellowish grays of the sheep's coats, and the straw around, and throws an alcove into gray shadows.

The course of the river leads back toward the right, and in a path running along its bank some people and cattle are observed. The land on the nearer side of the bank is made up of low green meadows.

The casket, covered with lettering, and its standard are a deep blue, with ornamentation on the standard in white, yellow and red, and over all are draperies of green, red and white. The whole is in a softened interior light, which is reduced along the background of dark green wall in lattice pattern, interrupted by a wide door of rich brown ornamented with green.

Height, 29 inches; width, 23½ inches

THE massive stone wall of the Temple of the ancient Jews fills the picture, above a flagging of gray stone or marble tinged with pink and blue. The wall, which is known as "The Wailing Place," is of huge blocks of stone, creamy gray, streaked and mottled with brown, purple, yellow, pink, white, blue and the tones of iron-rust, and bunches of grass spring from its crevices. Its lower courses date from the time of David and Solomon; some above are attributed to Herod. It is the custom of the Jews to come here and bewail their woes, and to pray, and bathe the sacred stones with their tears. In front of an in-set short pillar we see an aged solitary Jew who has paused to pray alone. He is standing, facing the left and seen in profile. He is red-bearded, and clothed in long cloaks of yellowish olive-green and gray-blue, and wears a tall black hat. He holds his book open and is looking up at the pillar, and beside him are his staff and bundle.

He is in brown with a gray waistcoat, she in a light blue house robe trimmed with white, over a yellowish skirt or petticoat. In front of the table a hound, which has finished its own meal, stands puzzled and expectant. On the white-covered table are fruits and flowers, and the wall background is of mahogany tones, with studio drapings in rich low notes.

No. 75—THE STAG HUNT

Height, 37 inches; length, 47 inches

AN open wood extends across the middleground of the picture, becoming more dense toward right and left while through the center one looks between the trees to open country, and two figures on horseback are observed in the shadows of the wood. The foreground is open, and the side of a pond comes into view. At the water's edge a pack of white and brown hounds have brought a stag to earth, after one of their number has been killed, and the bugler, riding up, winds his horn as signal to the hunt. A gun carrier with a lash whip runs up from the left to call off the dogs, and another attendant on the right has two more eager dogs in leash.

Height, 66½ inches; width, 39½ inches

ON the carved stone stairway of an outdoor terrace four persons have gathered, a young woman who holds a pet bird and another who is directing her attention to something in the garden not seen by the spectator, a third who glances down over the balustrade—these all standing—and below them a bearded man seated on the steps, playing a lute. All are in rich costumes. Over the railing and along the steps green ivy flourishes, and the sky is a mass of smoky-gray clouds.

Height, 62 inches; width, 48½ inches

THE Virgin Queen is seated, leaning back in a carved gilt and upholstered chair with deep mauve-pink cushions, facing the right with head turned slightly toward the front. She is looking downward in sober perturbation and sore unease at the inevitable task. Across a table beyond her her great minister stands in formal robes of red and black, bending forward with hand on chest and extending the instrument of death on the table. Behind him are two men. The Queen is in robes of golden-buff and emerald-green, heavily jeweled and embroidered. Her corsage is low and she wears the characteristic ruff.

No. 80—JEANNE LOPEZ DE TOLEDO

Height, 73 inches; width, 43¼ inches

FULL-LENGTH portrait of a handsome, placid and very human young woman, whose bright brown eyes regard the observer squarely, without giving denial to the smile that lurks about her small mouth. She is pictured on a balcony, with a rich crimson drapery at the left, and on the right a background of sunset sky and dimly seen greenery of hillside or foliage. Her gown is of rich dark greenish tone, lined with a golden brown, over a white satin underskirt gold embroidered; the bodice is pointed, and jeweled at the girdle, and the sleeves are slashed, and tied with yellow. A moderate ruff is edged with leaf-pointed lace, which continues as a border about the low corsage. The young lady has wavy chestnut hair fetchingly dressed, wears a wealth of pearls, and carries a gray and black ostrich feather fan. At the lower right is a coat of arms.

To be sold to close an Estate.
